Topic: Why is it important for you to learn as much as you can at your age? How will learning help you later?

It is important for me to learn as much as I can at my age so that when I grow up I would already be educated about the world and would be able to contribute to discussions about things that are happening in the world. Learning as much as I can might also help me in real life situations for example if I am walking down the road one day and I see two or three people arguing about a fact, maybe about the Amerindians. If I learned who they were in my days as a child I could easily solve their argument.

Learning can also make my family proud and can get me to a high point in life where I am respected by everyone including my elders. In my future line of employment having a good education can help me to get a promotion which will help me to have more money and an even better reputation with others. If I am ever in court my good reputation will be there to back me up and get people on my side and possibly help me win.

Being educated can help me in keeping a job that I love. It can also help me in getting a job. If my job ever requires me to be good at math, language, science and/or civics having a good education means that I would most likely have these skills and are good at them. Keeping a job is easy when you are educated because I would know how to speak and behave around others.

In the end I would know by many and I will be a great person. I would have a great legacy when I die and my family will feel sad. They would miss me.
