Another reason as to why the Swedes differ from other European Nations is because I don't think ~~them~~ they as a whole took part in the whole slave trade business.

Forgive me if I'm wrong but I believe ~~only~~ some men were sent to assist other nations in their slave trade journey. I think France called upon a few Swedish men and made them officers in their country rather than Sweden having ~~its~~ their own slave trade. I don't think any other country did this so this is also what makes them different, but referring back to my first statement, this doesn't necessarily mean they ~~were~~ ~~anti-racist~~ weren't racist. There could be many reasons as to why they didn't take part in the slave trade as a whole nation. One of which could be that their economy wasn't strong enough, another could be that they weren't allowed to have any slaves as maybe all of them were claimed by other European nations, or maybe they simply just wouldn't know what
