Introduction

- Why is it important to tell the truth? Well, it is important because when you tell the truth it means you are trustworthy, also it means you are faithful. In this piece of writing I am going to write about a time I was honest and a time I wasn't.

The last time I was honest.

- Imagine the last time you were truthful or ~~honest~~ honest. In this first paragraph I am going to give a reasonable example of when I was truthful. There was once a time when I was in school and my class teacher asked had I done a Accelerated Reader (A.R) quiz that half-term and I said no which did not make him cross but pleased that I told him the truth, and so I got a reward of getting some reading tips.

The last time I wasn't honest.

- Sometimes there are times when people are not truthful. For instance there was a time when I was on holiday and I used some of my mum's sisters' make-up time when I used my mum's things and she asked if I had used them but I said no. I felt bad about myself because I did not say the truth.

What bad changes can this do to life

- There are a lot of bad results this can lead to here are some. First this may cause people having no friends, Secondly you're more likely not to be trusted, Lastly this can lead to having a miserable life.

conclusion - From what I have written I think being truthfull and honest can be very important. People will live in peace and harmony.
