Omara Michael James.

Firstly, the system of governance in the African countries must be changed. In the case where the government just leaves large chunks of land to the investors without the voice of the people should stop. This is done forcefully by the ones in power unlike the Western countries like USA (United States of America), United Kingdom among others this case never takes place.

The investors must not accept to be corrupted by the ruling government in order to also cater for the lives of the local people.

There must also be improved and fair justice in the courts in relation to land grabbing. The Judge should not be corrupted first if this case of land must be solved.

Before leaving a land where minerals have been discovered to the investors the government must compensate the affected ones or give them land for ~~re~~ resettlement.

The policies concerning land must be put forward or resolved where each people has a land title for his/her land and no one should never be allowed to cross to others land or grab it by force.

There must be penalties put across for the ones grabbing the others land.

The people should start up a project that can speak out for the voiceless in case of any land matter. This will help to fight the corrupt rulers who give out the local people's land for their own benefits.

In addition there must be strict policies against the destruction of forests, wetlands
